5. Tie breaks for the World Chess Championship Tournament:

When the top two or more players score the same number of points, the title of the World Champion will be decided by the following criteria:

1. The results of the games between the players involved in the tie.
If they are still tied:
2. The total number of wins in the tournament of every player involved in the tie.

5.1. If there is no clear winner with the above 2 criteria, there will be a special competition between the players. Each player will play two games with the other opponents (one or more) with a time control of 25 minutes and an increment of 10 seconds per move from move one for each player. The winner shall be declared the World Champion.

5.2. If the scores are level after the games in paragraph 5.1, then, after a new drawing of colours, blitz games will be played, each player playing two games with the other opponent (one or more). Each player will receive 5 minutes on his clock +10 seconds for each move starting from move 1. If there is a tie again, this process will be repeated, for a maximum of two (2) more times, until two players remain.

Then, the players initially ranked No.2 and No.3 will play first and the winner will face the player initially ranked No.1. The games will be played as described in article 5.3 above. The winner of this procedure shall be declared the World Champion. The loser of the final match is No.2 in the final standings.

5.4.1 After the games in paragraph 5.2, and if we have four players still tied, sudden death games will be played too. The four players will be initially ranked according to their average FIDE rating of July 2004 & January 2005. If the World Champion, GM Rustam Kasimdzhanov, is one of the tied players, he will be initially ranked at the top. Then No.1 plays No.4 and No.2 plays No.3 and the two winners play the final match. All the games will be played as described in article 5.3 above. The winner of the final match shall be declared the World Champion.
